

Ever feel like you're being watched? Maybe you are...

Circuit is a new interactive artwork that showcases Victoria's extraordinary community of independent galleries and artist run spaces.

Created by renowned Australian artist Matthew Gingold, and featuring sculptural elements by Nicole Breedon and bld Architects this exciting work uses new technologies to link each gallery space via the internet.

Inside each gallery is a handmade Circuit unit with a high tech interior of the latest technologies. As you view the work, specially designed face recognition software will snap an instant photograph of you, projecting your image into the artwork – and eight other Circuit venues across the state.

While visiting Circuit you can also check out the intriguing visual arts programs as curated by each gallery, featuring some of Australia's most exciting emerging and established artists.

Please join us for the preview of Circuit:

4:30-5:30pm Tuesday 22 September

Bus Projects, 117 Little Lonsdale Street, Melbourne

You can see Circuit throughout the 2009 Melbourne Fringe Festival, from 23 Sept - 11 Oct. Please see melbournefringe.com.au/circuit for details.
